

VACCINATE YOUR ENTIRE FAMILY AGAINST PERTUSSIS

New Tdap Vaccine Now Available for Older Children and Adults

Pertussis, also known as whooping cough, is a highly contagious disease. More than 2000 cases were reported in Texas last year, and eight babies died.

The good news is pertussis can be prevented by a vaccine. Vaccinate your baby with DTaP, beginning at 2 months. Older children and adults should receive the new Tdap vaccine.

Ask your doctor if your children are up-to-date with their vaccinations.
