

SPECIMEN DAMAGED DURING TRANSPORT TO LABORATORY

If able to determine that a specimen was damaged in transport to the laboratory, it will be reported as such. The laboratory occasionally receives specimens in envelopes that have evidence of water damage (especially after heavy rains), specimens that were torn (perhaps due to postal mishaps) and envelopes of specimens that showed other evidence of damage during transport to the laboratory.

All 3 of the below specimens arrived in the same water soaked envelope

